Ministers receive their orders and instructions either directly from Moscow or from specialists in each field attached to the Soviet Embassy in Marsaw. On the other hand, instructions to the government are also issued by the Central Committee of the Party, which in turn received its orders from the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union. Madyslaw Gomulka, in prison for the past five years, has not been tried yet. He was a Communist, but a Pole also, (a parallel to Tite in Yugoslavia). In other camps the prisoners are made to perform heavy labor in the rockpits, forests and even on nationalized state farms (FJR). The prisoners are usually former capitalists, owners of private enterprises, stores, small shops etc, who were sentenced by so-called special commissions authorized to impose sentences of up to two years, to be served in the forced labor camps. Another category is composed of government officials and employees of public enterprises charged with embezzlement, corruption and all other types of offenses. Among the prisoners one may find also a considerable number of young people from 18 to 24 years old, who became completely demoralized and uprocted by the effects of the German occupation and the Communist regime, and who committed a number of orimes, like burglary, robbery, etc. In these camps one may find, therefore, persons completely innocent and sentenced only because they were found to he "enemies of the working class" compelled to share their lot with ordinary criminals.
